RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

2002-Present 1) Malingering of Cognitive Impairment and Psychological Disorder
 The IRFG Neuropsychology Service conducts ongoing research on malingering of cognitive impairment and psychological disorder, involving all consenting examinees seen at our clinic. Pre-hire psychological screening applicants provide an excellent control group, not only for purposes of matching by age, education, gender and race, but because their motivation to perform well is high.

2) Law Enforcement Pre-Hire Psychological Screening Database

IRFG maintains an ongoing database of all pre-employment psychological test data for consenting Law Enforcement applicants, and conducts follow-up interviews with agencies to identify whether recommendations served the agency well. We assess the differences in psychological testing profiles between those considered acceptable and unacceptable emotionally, as well as those who go on to maintain stable employment versus discipline or termination.

- 1995-1998 Assessment of Frontal Lobe Functioning in Psychopathy.
DISSERTATION, FINCH UNIVERSITY OF HEALTH SCIENCES/THE CHICAGO MEDICAL SCHOOL/LAKE COUNTY CORRECTIONAL CENTER
Co-Chairs Margaret Primeau, Ph.D., ABPP/CN, David Kosson, Ph.D.
This investigation utilized an experimental, between-groups factorial design to assess the effects of monetary incentives on neuropsychological performance in psychopaths and controls.
- 1994-1997 Attentional and Emotional Functioning in Psychopathy.
FINCH UNIVERSITY OF HEALTH SCIENCES/THE CHICAGO MEDICAL SCHOOL/LAKE COUNTY CORRECTIONAL CENTER
David Kosson, Ph.D.
Research assistantship on multiple investigations assessing multiple correlates of psychopathy, including affect recognition and performance on divided attention tasks.
- 1995-1996 Improved Delayed Visual Reproduction Test Performance in Multiple Sclerosis Patients Receiving Interferon B-1b.
UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO MEDICAL CENTER
Neil Pliskin, Ph.D., ABPP/CN
Research assistantship and membership in the University of Chicago Multiple Sclerosis Neuropsychology Work Group; assessment of the neurologic, neuropsychological, and psychological effects of Interferon-Beta on M.S. patients.
- 1994-1995 Caregiver and Patient Stress, Burden, and Coping Following Stroke.
REHABILITATION INSTITUTE OF CHICAGO
Rosemary King, Ph.D.
This longitudinal investigation aimed to assess the physical and psychological burdens of stroke survivors, the psychological burdens of caregivers, and predictive utility of coping styles in functional outcome.
- 1992-1994 Predicting Employment in Traumatic Brain Injury.
MASTER'S THESIS, UNIVERSITY OF HEALTH SCIENCES/THE CHICAGO MEDICAL SCHOOL/SCHWAB REHABILITATION CENTER
Margaret Primeau, Ph.D., ABPP/CN
This investigation assessed predictors of return to work in severe TBI survivors, employing multivariate assessment of neurologic, neuropsychological, personality, alcohol, and sociodemographic variables.
- 1991-1994 Efficacy of Systematic Motivational Counseling in TBI Survivors with Comorbid Substance Abuse.
SCHWAB REHABILITATION CENTER
Miles Cox, Ph.D., Eric Klinger, Ph.D., Vincent Miranti, Ph.D.

This longitudinal investigation assessed the effects of Systematic Motivational Counseling techniques on neuropsychological, psychological, and alcohol variables in severe TBI survivors with substance abuse issues.

- 1988-1990 Self-Discrepancy, Ego Development, and Eating Disorders.
UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN, MADISON
Timothy Strauman, Ph.D.
Research assistantship on multiple investigations assessing ego development and consequences of self-discrepancies in women, depression, and eating disorders.
- 1987-1990 The Revised Learned Helplessness Theory of Depression.
UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN, MADISON
Lyn Abramson, Ph.D.
Research assistantship on a longitudinal investigation assessing the role of hopelessness as a proximal cause of depression (as part of the revised learned helplessness theory), specifically whether childhood physical, sexual, and psychological abuse predict depressogenic cognitive styles that increase risk for depression.
